in aid of the South Georgia Heritage Trust (SGHT)
7pm, Tuesday 10th November 2009
Royal Geographical Society (with IBG), London

Following on from last September's successful performance of Tom Crean – Antarctic Explorer in Dundee, SGHT is planning to hold a special event in London later this year to help raise funds to support the Trust's conservation work in South Georgia. On the evening of 10th November 2009 TV wildlife presenter Nigel Marven will give a talk entitled Filming Penguins and Pipits in South Georgia – how do you do that?

Beginning his career at the BBC Natural History Unit in Bristol, Nigel Marven worked closely with David Attenborough for over 12 years and produced highly acclaimed prime time TV wildlife documentary films including Incredible Journeys and Life of Birds. He went on to produce and present natural history programmes for ITV and now owns his own production company. Using examples of footage shot in South Georgia, Nigel will tell us about filming birds on an island in the South Atlantic.

Nigel Marven's talk will be held in the Ondaatje Lecture Theatre at the Royal Geographical Society (with IBG), 1 Kensington Gore, London, commencing at 7pm with an introduction by HRH The Princess Royal, Patron of the South Georgia Heritage Trust. Prior to the talk, between 6pm and 7pm, Her Royal Highness will attend a reception in the Map Room of the Royal Geographical Society. She will also view a collection of South Georgia art by a number of distinguished artists whose work is being offered for sale that evening to help raise funds for the Trust.

This promises to be a very special evening for those interested in the island of South Georgia and all are invited.
